DETAILED ACTION

The Amendment filed on 22 February 2007 and RCE filed on 10 April 2007 have been acknowledged.

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 10 April 2007 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 15-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Pilosof et al (US 6,474,783).

Pilosof et al disclose the following claimed features:

Regarding claim 15, a method of expelling ink, comprising: filling an ink chamber (30) with ink; irradiating (10) a laser beam (36) directly onto the ink (17) contained in the ink chamber (30) to generate a pressurized wave in the ink and vibrating a surface of the ink using the pressurized wave; and increasing amplitude of the pressurized wave in the ink (Figure 3, Abstract) to expel an ink droplet (38) from the surface of the ink (17) by the vibration of the surface of the ink (column 5, lines 39 to column 6, line 2).

Regarding claim 16, further comprising: converging the laser beam (36) using a condenser lens (14) before irradiating the laser beam (36) onto the ink.

Regarding claim 17, wherein the laser beam (36) has a sufficiently high energy and is irradiated onto the ink for a sufficiently short period of time to prevent boiling the ink (column 6, lines 3-7).

Regarding claim 18, wherein the ink chamber (30) is a plurality of ink chambers (even though only one chamber is shown) and irradiating (14) the laser beam (36) onto the ink comprises: selectively irradiating (14) the laser beam (36) onto ink contained in one or more of the plurality of ink chambers (Figure 2B, control unit 9).

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 1-14, 19 and 20 are allowed over prior arts as discussed in Applicant's Remarks filed on 22 February 2007.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed 22 February 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argued that Pilosof et al failed to disclose a method of applying a laser beam directly onto the ink and increasing amplitude of the pressurized wave to expel ink. However, this argument is not found persuasive because the laser source 10 in Figure 3 of Pilosof et al passes through the condenser lens 14 which then generates a pulse of acoustic waves being increased and applied directly onto the ink contained in the ink chamber 30. Therefore, this limitation is taught and disclosed by Pilosof et al and the above rejection is maintained.
